Šnipiškės is a historical neighbourhood in the center of Vilnius (Lithuania) that faced a rapid redevelopment pressure in last decades. An unique architecture contrast between the inhabited wooden houses of 19th century and modern skyscrapers is one of the unique traits of this place. Seeking to engage the local community in the place-making and decision-making, to reconfigure a negative image of the neighbourhood, to reveal its cultural values and historical background, Laimikis team has developed participatory tools. Urbingo is one of them.

Our meeting point:

URBINGO is an urban orientation game and alternative guide to the changing neighbourhoods.

Build your team or take part in the game individually. Choose your cards and explore the neighbourhood! Return to the starting point.

This game was developed by Laimikis.lt as a matrix for collecting and arranging neighbourhood stories and changing material culture, turning it into actively used archive. It is a tool for activating the interest in the rapidly changing neighbourhoods and their stories, and encouraging citizen participation in gathering the valuable empirical data on the material culture of the changing neighbourhood. Special editions of the game are created for several European cities. Laimikis.lt urban co-design group (c).
